Lauren Jackson, Small Image Show Judge
www.abstract-expressionist.com

My work is deeply inspired by the Abstract Expressionist and other modern art movements. I am seeking to produce art that expresses our spiritual connection to nature and the physical feeling of being alive, without the invocation of religion or use of iconographic content. Visually appealing, energetic and alive, my work conveys energy and harmony, flow and solidity, light and mystery connecting the viewer to those parts of their human experience.

Wanda Olson

Rosy Pictures

Mary G. Weiss became a volunteer for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation after learning that her three little boys had CF. Her job was to make calls seeking financial support for the agency. After several calls Mary's 4-year-old son, Richard, who had been listening closely and did not know he had the disease, told his Mom, "I know what you are working for. You are working for 65 roses."

That was back in 1965. Today, children with CF use the mondegreen (the mishearing of a phrase) because it is easier for them to pronounce. It also has come to represent cystic fibrosis for North County resident Wanda Olson, who began illustrating roses with watercolors after her daughter succumbed to the disease just a few years ago. The still lifes she creates are a way to remember her daughter and help the cause (she donates a portion of sale proceeds to cystic fibrosis research). Olson has shown her work in numerous galleries throughout San Diego.
